Brief background context

- Imperial College Business School
- More than 1,700 students; with over 1,300 at Masters level
- 14 Masters programmes; doctoral programme; UG modules; and Summer School courses
- Students given iPads to enable paperless delivery of courses – ceased this academic year

Library integrated into all programmes

- Library induction – using iPads and Sli.do
- Business information for assignments
- Business information for final assignments
- Introduction to DataStream
- RefWorks
- Plagiarism Awareness – using Sli.do
- Research Project Study Skills
- Drop-ins, remote help, etc., etc., etc.

Why use Sli.do?

- Students love using mobile devices in lectures – so we gave them an excuse, and focus, to do so!
- Enabled engagement with:
 - shy students; or those who will not speak in lectures
 - very large groups
 - those who's first language is not English
- Provided real-time responses and analytics for in-session discussions

Original

Because of their unique perspective, Americans fear globalization less than anyone else, and as a consequence they think about it less than anyone else. When Americans do think about globalization, they think of the global economy as an enlarged version of the American economy.

Which is the best paraphrasing? Vote on Sli.do

A

According to Lester Thurow (1993)
Americans fear globalization less than people from other countries and as a consequence spend less time thinking about it. Indeed, Americans see globalization as an enlarged version of their own economy.

B

Lester Thurow (1993) maintains that because Americans see globalization simply as a bigger form of their own economy, they are less concerned about it than is the rest of the world.

S/he has only substituted synonyms here and there. Even though Thurow is credited with a citation, this would be considered plagiarism.	Lester Thurow (1993) maintains that because Americans see globalization simply as a bigger form of their own economy, they are less concerned about it than is the rest of the world. Why is this acceptable? The writer has kept the meaning of the original passage without copying words or structure. Words like globalization and Americans are generic terms (i.e., terms that are commonly used for the concept they illustrate - it is difficult to find synonyms for them). Thus you may use these words without placing them in quotation marks. (Complete Thurow reference appears in bibliography)

If we receive the 'views' of an academic during a discussion, this would count as the 'thoughts' of that person. How do we reference that in a piece of writing?
