CEDPS Library News
April 2018

Greetings from your Academic Liaison Librarians, James, Sam and Shazia. Our newsletter will keep you updated on any library matters relating to CEDPS departments. This issue features a detailed look at some of our new E-resources, a digital textbook trial, and a student-led campaign. There are also some updates on what we've been up to in Library Academic Services.

Liberated Library: books & role models

Now in its third year, the #LiberatedLibrary campaign is run by Brunel Students and the Student Success Project. Its aim is to increase the diversity of authors and practitioners in the library collection and the curriculum as a whole. STEM subjects have formed a key focus of this year's campaign; in response, key CEDPS academics have been looking at ways to expand the range of scientists, engineers and mathematicians used as examples in teaching. New books are also being added to our collection from student suggestions, and a series of posters are on display in the library showcasing female and minority ethnic alumni as role models. Sam Piker is the library liaison for the campaign, and more details can be found on the staff intranet under Student Success.
